The Months As We Know Them

April 1948 — Wainwright, Alberta
The Conspirator Oh Me!
"April"—The Road—and the Weather—

Have put their heads together—
And sure between them made a mess!
But now when "May" comes we hope
It will straighten all out in right-

And then lovely "June" as of yore
Fulfills its duties so before.
"July"—then is our next—
And glad we are: 'Heat'—is its text.
Then "August" mellow, mild and true
Will show that we have no need to rue
Then "September" with its Capricious ways—
Will give us joy—but keep us on our toes for days.

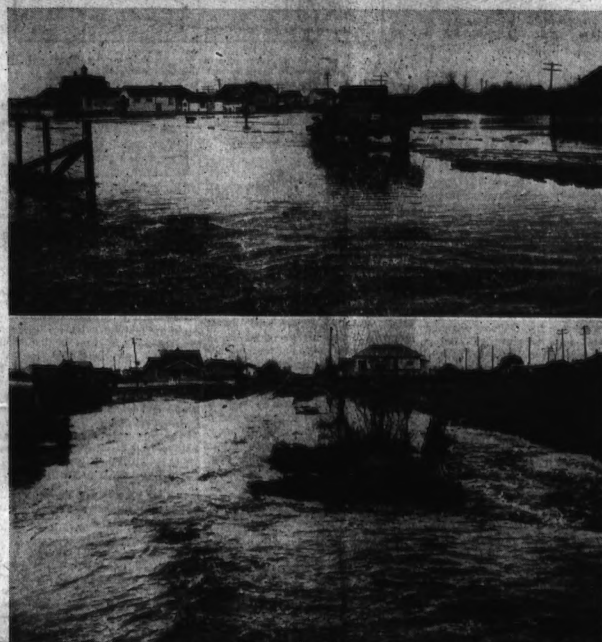

Maybe now our Summer is over—
Because "October" is such a rover.
"November" then an Indian Summer
Will us give
And its pleasures we don't forget
Long as we live.
"December" now is always a joyous season
Notwithstanding any weather—there is a reason.

The Spirit of Christmas invade, every nook and cranny
And to make everybody happy is the aim of many
Then "January"—cold, severe, strong Warm: girl yourself if you want to get along.
Then "February" humming that same tune—
Take care—you are not immune!
Then "March" always was a Flirt—
Melting snow, flinging mud and dirt.

CARD OF THANKS
I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the Doctors of the Clinic and the Nurses and Staff at the Hospital for their care and kindness, also the friends and neighbors who called or sent fruit or flowers during my recent illness.

Large Attendance at W.I. Card Party

An almost capacity crowd attended the W.I. Whist Drive, held Wednesday last April 28th in the Masonic Hall, Wainwright. The major portion of the proceeds for this event were donated to the Cancer Fund, which drive is underway at this time. More than 240 tickets were sold in advance by the W.I. members, which would net the Cancer Fund more than $600.00.

Competition was keen for the many useful prizes that were displayed in a down town store window prior to the card playing. These prizes, as the tickets and the use of the hall were donated to the cause by local merchants. The door prize consisted of a hand-made table lamp in many patterned wood, complete with shade and bulb. This lamp was donated by Mr. Jas. Strang Jr., and

Battle River Goes On Flooding Spree

The battle river which for many years has flowed west and north of Wainwright, went on somewhat of a flooding spree last week overflowing its banks as it went. This has been a major attraction to many motorists and every evening many cars can be seen heading in the direction of Fabian.

The water is very muddy and flowing very swiftly and is backed up where the highway crosses the bridge for 400 feet to the north flooding all land known as Kings Park. Some concern is felt for the safety of the highway at this point as the water is pouring over the road wearing away the road bed. On Monday there was hardly enough room left on the highway for one car to pass through the flooded portion of the road. At the time of writing there is no sign of the water receding, and from reports heard it is estimated that the river has risen 2 inches in the last 24 hours prior to Monday night.

The highway bridge is badly jammed with floating debris between the two middle spans. This has been cleared away every day for the last week by Mr. R. King who lives nearby. This driftwood is causing considerable strain on the bridge footings as the water dammed up at this point to a height of within one foot of the bridge floor proper.

On the highway north of Wainwright, the Vermilion bridge crossing the Battle river is reported to be near the flooded level with the highway approaches to same washed out and planks substituted. All the flat and on either side of the river is under water to a depth ranging from one to six feet and even more in lower lying areas.

was won by Mr. John Bow. Prizes were awarded at the end of the evening to those with the winning scores, to the following: Ladies first—Mrs. Russell Gaudet; Ladies second—Mrs. B. Davison; Ladies third—Mrs. P. O'Shelly; Ladies consolation—Mrs. W. Carrell; Gents first—Mr. O. Michon; Gents second—Mr. F. Ashe; Gents third—Mr. E. Nordstrom; Gents consolation—Mr. J. E. Nordstrom.

Hotel Cafe Changes Management

The management of the Wainwright Hotel Cafe (to be known as the Hotel Restaurant in future) changed during the past week and at the time of writing is closed for alterations and decoration. As reported to the Star the premises will be reopened on Thursday May 6th.

The new proprietors, as listed in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, are to be Mr. and Mrs. Jack Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are entering into this business with a large knowledge of the catering and restaurant business, having recently been employed with the "Canada Railway News (Station Restaurant)" in Wainwright.

The former proprietor, Mr. Harry Stromme, said in an interview with the Star that he had not completed his plans for the future and was not prepared to state whether he and Mrs. Stromme were leaving Wainwright. Mr. Stromme has been engaged in this business since the former proprietors, Mr. Phil Poe opened his new business in Edmonton more than a year ago.

The Answer To Can You Tell Us

Last weeks Star carried a story about strange birds in the neighborhood and some person has come up with the answer to explain that these birds are either white geese or swans which in the past have not been plentiful in this district.

Two reports have come from the Greenhills district that these birds have been feeding in that territory. Mr. J. Hines reports that his field held numerous of these birds, and he claims that the birds he has seen do not fit the description of either geese or swans, leaving Star readers' right back where they were one week ago.

Up to the present there has been no explanation of these creatures except that they have white plumage, are extremely large, fly with their feet trailing behind their body and have black tips on their wings. If anyone knows the answer to this one, it would be appreciated if they

Tree Causes Power Interruption

A serious interruption of electric power service to the towns and industries north of Olds, supplied by Calgary Power Ltd., occurred at 2:03 p.m., April 27th. A contractor, engaged by a farmer to clear some land in the Ponoka area, had felled two trees across the Calgary Power Ltd.'s main 132,000 Volt Ghost to Edmonton transmission line.

This interruption caused a great inconvenience to the Power Company's many consumers in the area involved. Industries, homes, hospitals, water systems and other facilities that reach deeply into the lives of people were affected.

An immediate report to the Power Co. staff would have greatly reduced the length of the power interruption. This was not done, and the location of the trouble entailed an airplane patrol in very low visibility weather at great risk of life.

The most anxious moments occurred just before the landing. Edmonton, when the ceiling was practically zero. Also, as the exact nature of the trouble could not be determined from the air, the repair crews were hampered by travelling with unnecessary materials over the bad roads and flooded lands to the trouble location. The almost impassable road conditions also delayed switching operations as well as access to trouble when finally located by airplane.

Service was restored to the main line towns between Olds and Wetaskiwin and in the Sylvan Lake, Rocky Mountain House, Nordegg and Miramichi areas after about 45 minutes delay. Service was restored to the towns north, east and west of Edmonton, and some towns east of Camrose over alternate transmission lines, after about 50 minutes delay, but it was not until 8:15 p.m. that the 132,000 Volt Transmission line was put back in service.

In the interim service to its many consumers and for the safety of the individuals concerned, the Power Company would like everyone to exercise extreme care when felling trees near power lines, and particularly note that any damage to power lines be reported to its nearest office as soon as possible so that immediate measures can be taken to restore service.

A SCHOOL DEBENTURE ISSUE

In this issue of the Star, in the School Divisional minutes as well as the advertising columns, there appears notification of a new debenture issue for the purpose of building a new school at Chauvin. This will come as no surprise to the people of the Chauvin district, as they have been aware of the deplorable condition of the school at that point for some time.

The debenture issue is comparably small, being only $50,000. Just what type of school is contemplated for this sum of money we have not been informed, but it will be at least to the minimum government standards as set out today by the Department of Education.

Chauvin has felt the need for a new school building for many years. This was a known fact when the Wainwright School Division entered into an agreement with the Chauvin Board. Even at that time the Divisional Board realized that Chauvin would be the first point to receive consideration when the subject of a new school would be discussed.

We have been given to understand that Wainwright is to receive the next consideration in the line of a new school. How many years this will be we do not know. Our need for a new school at this point is well known by the Board members, pupils, teachers and parents alike. It is only a matter of time until similar action will place a modern building on the site of the 1910 structure, well past its usefulness as a school building. To return back to the original theme of this editorial, for we did wander a bit, these new debentures are now on sale. They will go on sale to the general public at 4 1/4%, payable in 10 years. This is a gold brick investment for the average John Doe; for by letting his money work for him to earn him a hand some return, he will provide an opportunity to give some children a better education in a better school building. What better investment is there than that?

FIRST CLASS MAIL BY AIR

The announcement last week that in the very near future, all first class mail would be carried by air if it was possible to speed up the delivery of same, is one that will be welcomed in all parts of Canada. This projected step has been long overdue, and has been on the minds of men with vision for some time.

At the present it is possible to send air mail to points in Canada for 7c, but starting early in July Air Mail will go for the ordinary letter rate of 4c, if it can be speeded to its destination via that means of transportation. At present the plans are only in the formative stage and the government owned airline has been the only one mentioned to take part in this new venture. T.C.A. with practically a monopoly on air transportation in Canada would benefit greatly by this newest step. On the other hand some criticism might be voiced that the plans should go one step further and take in all air lines under contract to carry mail.

In most instances the carrying of mail by air will only be done when it shows to be a definite advantage in speed over the conventional train service. Thus a letter being posted to Toronto from the local post office would certainly take wings on arriving in Edmonton, to be delivered in Toronto the following day. The same letter sent to Saskatoon would not take to the air, as the service afforded by the trains is almost as fast as that which could be offered by airplane. In most cases it will mean that only long distance mailing will be affected.

What this will bring in the future is beyond us to say. The idea of air postal service to every large size town is not too remote. Of course, much time will elapse before anything of this nature makes its appearance, but it is coming. We might not see it before most of us pass on, but children unborn will read about this step at some future date, only to expect such an occurrence as their natural heritage.

DEATH IN PARLIAMENT RANKS

The announcement that flashed over the radio waves on Monday noon, regarding the passing of the Honorable W. A. Fallow following a short illness, left most everyone with a sort of vague and empty feeling. Although many Alberta citizens did not hold the same political faith as Mr. Fallow, and many of the people of this province criticized his policies vigorously at some time or another, a deep feeling of regret was ours at this sad news.

Elected to the Provincial Government in 1935 he was appointed to the position of Minister of Public Works in the Aberhart cabinet. A position that he has held ever since, seeking re-election twice since and winning over his opponents both times. Mr. Fallow filled one of the more important posts in the Provincial Government, and with few exceptions filled it to the best of his ability, even to the extent of overwork, which caused his health to break down causing his death at an early age.

Our sympathies are extended to Mr. Fallow's family at this time and we feel sure that many of our readers will do likewise, regardless of political faith or affiliations.

by ottawa observer

Observers here are watching closely the trend of political thinking in Ontario since Premier Drew announced that a provincial election would be held at the end of three years of his five year term. There is a great deal of argument as to the reason for this early election. Progressive Conservatives claim that Mr. Drew calls an election at this time because he feels confident of his strength. Liberals believe that his action denotes weakness. They believe that his strength has greatly diminished because of internal party friction and point to the fact that he did not attend the National Progressive Conservative Convention last week. There is a great deal of comment on his unprecedented action of calling an election on the King's birthday. Party strategy.

In Quebec Premier Duplessis did not announce an election date last week as had been expected in Ottawa circles. There are many signs that he has renounced Progressive Conservative overtures and will refuse to co-operate with Mr. Bracken. This was obviously a great disappointment to the P.C. Convention in Ottawa where Progressive Conservative speakers many times linked the names of Drew and Duplessis.

The Conservative, Liberal and C.C.F. parties are all lining up their candidates for the provincial election. Three cornered fights are expected in almost every constituency and the Social Credit party will be a fourth in a few. While Premier Drew gives a change from 25 to 60 cycle power in part of Ontario as the issue of the election, Liberal leader Paraghar has declared for an end of Drew's "silly and schemes dealing with the Canadian government" and has promised adequate support of hospitals, an increase in workman's compensation and action that will prevent any need of a provincial income tax which is expected next year in Ontario under present provincial policies.

European Recovery
Interest is high here on the European Recovery Plan passed by the United States government.

Canada has created an interdepartmental committee to co-operate with the U.S. in making available commodities required by the E.R.P. The committee has undertaken a review of the supply position in this country, and has prepared a detailed list of Canadian availabilities that will be submitted to the authorities in Washington. Manufacturers in Canada are asked to advise the commodity officer of the Export Division, Foreign Trade Service, concerning supplies of their respective products available to meet requirements of the E.R.P. More general enquiries should be directed, however, to Mr. G. R. Heaman, Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

Countries receiving assistance under the European Recovery Program have been requested to submit a list of their requirements to the control authorities concerned. While the procurement procedure has not been outlined, it is assumed that different methods will be adopted to meet special conditions. In some cases the E.R.P. country may be authorized to place contracts for bulk supplies with Canadian Government procurement agencies, such as the Canadian Commercial Corporation, or with the Department of Agriculture. Orders may also be placed directly with Canadian exporters.

Requirements listed under fifty-three headings are of particular interest to our farmers and fishermen as they include grains, meats, fish, canned milk, cheese and tobacco.

"Gus" said Bill, as he caught up with Gus on the way back to camp, "are all the rest of the boys out of the woods yet?"

"Yes," said Gus.

"All six of them?"

"And they're all safe?"

"Yep," answered Gus, "they're all safe."

"Then," said Bill, his chest swelling, "I've shot a deer."

Joe Rutledge Says

IT'S YOUR STAKE

By Joseph Lester Rutledge

What the people of the world need most is to understand their own political faith—and it gives and what it withholds. What does democracy mean to us? Little enough to most of us, if we are honest about it. Little enough, and our very understanding of that little remains vague and intangible. Perhaps that is because we cannot imagine a justice that could be sold, denied or delayed. We cannot believe that rights could be taken from us by means other than the judgment of our peers, or of the law of the land. We know that we cannot be condemned on idle rumor. Seven hundred years ago men of our blood established this confidence when they signed the Great Charter.

We have no fear of being imprisoned without cause, or of being held in prison without reason. We know we must be told of the charge against us. Habeas Corpus established that long ago. We do not dread the arbitrary power of king or councillor, nor fear that those powers might be used to defeat our rights. We know that neither can deny our will or tax us without our consent, and neither can control parliament so that we may not make our will known. So the Bill of Rights assured us. No one can tell us whom or how we shall worship, or demand that worship or any it to us. No one but ourselves can restrict our right to speak our own thoughts. We have put all this in the words of the Toleration Act.

These are the substance of our democracy; the right to be free, and without fear. They are not intangibles, or vaguely meaningless thoughts. They touch our lives every where. We sometimes think these rights are universal, but they are not. All over Eastern Europe the lamps of freedom have gone out. They have gone out as definitely under communism as they went out under Hitler's mad dream of National Socialism. Can anyone say that in Poland or Hungary or Yugoslavia or Czechoslovakia a man cannot be condemned on rumor? The concentration camps are full of people so condemned, people who cannot secure their release, or know why they are held. Can anyone say of these countries that justice is not sold, denied or delayed? Can anyone, under the lengthening shadow of the Kremlin speak his own mind, or believe that the people's law means anything to minorities that seize power by craft or violence, and hold it by terror? Maybe we are not too clear about democracy, or communism, for that matter, but there is the broad line between them. On the one side free men standing on rights that no one can deny, on the other men who move at the word of a despot, and whose rights are lost in a maze of uncertainty and terror.

TAKE IT EASY

National health experts have known for a long time that recreation is a vital need for all Canadians. Recreation means spare time activities such as evening and week-end play and a complete holiday each year. Most employers now realize that annual vacations help make more satisfied and more efficient workers but many professional and technical workers neglect to find time to relax completely at least once a year. In order to work efficiently it is necessary to rest adequately.

Magistrate (sympathetically): "Could the motorist have avoided you?"

Henpecked Victim (sadly): "He chose that of 'titting me' or the missus, and 'e picked on me."

Dear Mr. Huntingford:
Enclosed you will find newspaper clipping which is self explanatory.

If this could be published in your paper, it may help me in finding my Mother. I have reason to think she may be somewhere in that area. In the year of 1913, my father spent most of his time there installing telegraph and telephone lines, according to his diary.

Thank you very much for any assistance you may be able to give me.
Yours very truly,

BALKED YEARS BY FAMILY STRIFE, MAN MAY YET SEE HIS MOTHER

By Madeline Wilson

W. P. Burrell, 1126 N. Lee, can't remember when his whole life wasn't influenced by a great desire to see his parents. And he can't remember when there was some mystery connected with them.

Now, after nearly 24 years devoted almost entirely to trying to solve that mystery, he hopes he is nearing his goal. But he is too late to see his father. The elder Burrell, the son learned two weeks ago, died in 1928 in Seattle when the son was less than 100 miles away.

The mother, if still alive, is somewhere in Canada, still believing her only child died when he was a baby. Jealousy is back of the whole tragedy, he says.

Burrell's father, H. M. Burrell, an Arkansas man, went to Edmonton, Canada, in 1913 to work for a telephone company. He fell in love with a French Canadian girl, Minnie Smith. A small pocket diary now in the son's possession, tells in a few words the story of the romance.

Under March 11, 1913, the man wrote, "Said 'yes' tonight." On May 4, "Confirmed." (The girl was a Catholic). And on May 6, "Married," and the name of the priest and the church are given.

In October, 1913, Burrell brought his French Canadian bride back to Arkansas to meet his parents and three sisters. A Catholic and unable to speak except in very broken English, the girl was not warmly welcomed.

Her baby son—W. P. "Bill"—was born on April 4, the following year. About six months later, the young father went to Wyoming to seek work. Then, Burrell explains now, jealousy eating at their hearts, relatives got busy.

They told the young Canadian mother she could no longer stay in the United States without citizenship. She must return to her native country until her husband could join her there again. They took her 8-month-old baby, put the mother on the train and thus started the separation that has lasted a life time. Eventually they wrote her the baby had died. Then they wrote the same news to the young father in Wyoming.

Growing up in the knowledge there was an undercurrent of deceit everywhere he turned, Bill ran away from his grandparents' home when he was 10. When he would return home at irregular intervals it would be only to beg his relatives for knowledge about his parents' whereabouts. (His grandparents had died, meantime).

He bummed around the country, a rebellious youth who didn't even have the security of knowing that somewhere his parents were alive.

In 1943 he settled here in Oklahoma City where he is now owner of a garage at 513 NW 2. Two weeks ago he and his wife went to St. Louis to visit a relative who has always seemed the leader in the deception. "We sat down in her living room," Burrell says, "and I told her we were going to stay there until she told us what she knows about my parents."

After about three hours—and they must have been bitter, unpleasant hours—she "remembered." She remembered when and where Bill's father died. She remembered where she had some letters from his mother, written in 1917, and the small diary that had been kept by his father.

The letters—about six of them—are filled with awkwardly worded English phrases about "my darling baby," "my heart is broken, I cry all the time."

Now Burrell's search for his mother is intensified. But all the clues he has to go on are contained in words that are yelowed with age.

Perfectly Well-Meaning Old Lady: "Thank you so much for your song, my dear. It took me back to my childhood days on my father's farm, and when I shut my eyes and listened to your singing, I seemed to hear the dear old gate creaking in the wind."

Human Interest Stories

By Douglas W. Smith
Public Relations Officer,
Canadian Legion, 1935.

"Hiya, chum, come and have a drink with the old man." I looked disinterestedly at a "thickset" bullet-headed character leaning on the bar wanting to buy drinks for all and sundry.

He had tied one on beautifully but was in good spirits and at peace with the world. I was killing time in my hotel bar at Providence, Rhode Island, waiting for plane departure.

"Well, well, if it ain't a Canadian soldier," he beamed, spotting my discharge button and edging closer.

There wasn't much else I could do but be polite and tolerate the joker for a limited time.

He became quite talkative. He wanted to show me that he had much in common with me. He was an old sweat himself from the First Great War.

"Yesir, this little old United States is just about the nicest place in the whole wide world. Y'know I fought in the last war—then leaning closer and confidentially "only I was with the Prussian army. Got me an Iron Cross, too."

At least this was interesting. "Yesir, young fellow, I was a corporal in a machine gun outfit. I'll never forget the morning outside of Toul when we ran into an American negro battalion. Boy, oh boy, did we ever mow down them black fellows—don't know when I had such sport in years."

The guy was getting a little repulsive. "I came over to the United States and started a little key-making shop. Great country this little old America. When the last war started the government gave me money to enlarge my shop. Next thing I knew I had a plant of my own." He whistled. "I made me a million bucks, and now I'm going to take it easy for the rest of my whoopin' life."

Later, leaning back in my plane seat I mused on this character and upon our way of life. Here was a man who had fought and killed our countrymen in one war, and then followed up by making a fortune out of that country in another war. It all seemed so screwy. It just didn't add up.

Sometimes I think that what we won so dearly we often share too easily. I don't like preaching—but isn't it time that we took stock of what we have. Appraise it. And realize that if we don't put forward a little effort to maintain the things we cherish, someone may come along and take them away from us.

Dollars With A Future

Equality of opportunity for young Canadians—this was one of the objectives of the Family Allowance Plan.

Realizing the importance of an education in opening the doors of opportunity for their children, some parents are depositing all or part of their Family Allowance cheques in special savings accounts at the Bank of Montreal.

"Parents are pleasantly surprised to find how quickly this savings fund mounts up when cheques are deposited regularly," said Mr. Smith, manager of the Bank of Montreal. "If a baby's first Family Allowance cheque goes into a new bank account, and is saved regularly, the child will have over $1,000, to his credit at the age of sixteen."

"Such a cash reserve can be a tremendous help in making dreams for an education come true," Mr. Smith added. "The money can be drawn out at any time, of course, to meet an emergency or some opportunity. But many parents prefer to consider it a special Education Fund. We'll be glad to open an account for any interested parents." —ADVT.

Glare Lights Are Worst Road Menace

Strutting the need for observance of greater safety on the highways, officials of the Alberta Motor Association have drawn attention to particularly glare headlights.

Last year there were 3,597 accidents on provincial highways, in which the damage exceeded $25. In many of these accidents, glare headlights undoubtedly provided the cause.

Surveys in the U.S. show that glare is the No. 1 enemy of night driving motorists.

The reports revealed that 33 1/2 per cent of motorists on the highway at night either forgot or refuse to dim their headlights for approaching cars or when they come up close behind another vehicle.

Also, it has been established that hazards of night-time driving are greatly increased by the large number of cars with lights incorrectly adjusted or with one or more lights blacked-out.

Forty-three states and the District of Columbia have legislation which covers dimming. Five states do not require it.

In Alberta the R.C.M.P. already is making a check of cars with glare headlights as much lights are a violation of the provincial statute.

The Hoarder

All right, so he's a hoarder. But just who are we to scorn. The chipmunk's hoard of pine nuts. Don't the farmers store their corn?

When winter blizzards whistle, Piling snowdrifts on the ground, A snug supply of victuals Will be nice to have around.

The chipmunk hears no sermons And he's never read a book, Yet knows if he goes hungry He can't blame it on the cook.

Right now his Christmas dinner's Safe and dry beneath that rock. Let hard time come. He's thrifty. He's got something in the sock.

Friseby is one of the politest of men. One day he was cycling along a broad road when he espied ahead a lady, also cycling, who was wide of figure and uncertain as to steering. Fearing an accident he rang his bell. The lady promptly wobbled frantically and eventually dismounted with more speed than grace. Friseby hurried to her assistance, to be met with a spiteful remark: "Do you want all the road?" "No, Madam," replied Friseby, courteously. "I abominate selfishness. I was simply desirous of being permitted to make use of the small portion which you were not using!"

Stubble Mulch Farming

Tilling the soil in such a way that crop residues are left on the surface is generally called stubble mulch farming. This practice is widely recommended as a soil conservation measure in the dry land areas of Western Canada, particularly where wind erosion has been a menace or may become so again in the future.

Farmers who adopt this type of tillage have to use subsurface equipment which will till the soil thoroughly without completely burying the residue. Recently, machines of the cultivator type, with wider tilting blades coupled to fewer and stronger shanks, have come into prominence. Although stubble mulching is mechanically feasible and does give some erosion control, it has limitations that tend to restrict its wide adoption.

For many districts of the green plains area however, the advantages of stubble mulch farming greatly outweigh the disadvantages. In the first place, this type of tillage is less costly than most other methods. Furthermore, it is known that soils protected with stubble mulch absorb moisture more readily and retain it longer than do bare soils. When raindrops strike bare soil, the structure of the soil particles may be broken down, forming a compact surface layer which reduces water intake and increases run-off. Under a crop residue, well distributed over the surface, will reduce the wind velocity so that soil particles are less likely to move.

From the standpoint of yield there appears to be a definite tendency for stubble mulching to show an advantage under conditions of low rainfall. On the other hand, under humid conditions lower yields may result. Yield reductions of this kind, caused by a lack of available soil nitrates, can be compensated for by applying 25 to 40 pounds of 16-20 ammonium phosphate per acre.

If stubble mulching is to be more widely accepted by prairie farmers, and if more farmers are to be discouraged from burning stubble and straw then more field investigation work is needed to find answers to some of the problems that confront farmers who are now using this practice in Western Canada.

"William," said mother severely, "there were two pieces of cake in the pantry when I went out and there is only one now. How is that?" "I don't know," said William. "But it was dark, and I suppose I didn't see the other piece."

"Strange what a small word it takes to start a quarrel," sighed Mr. Youngblood. "I was sitting reading, and my wife was doing a crossword puzzle, when she suddenly asked: 'What is a female sheep?'"

"Ewe," I replied shortly, and that started it."

The congregation of the Gilt Edge Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rathwell on Sunday afternoon, May 2nd, when Rev. Dr. Young delivered his farewell sermon to the congregation. There was a large crowd in attendance despite the heavy rains in the afternoon, and the impressive sermon preached by Dr. Young will long be remembered by all those present. After the service a lunch was served by Mrs. Rathwell while everyone enjoyed a social hour and visit with Dr. and Mrs. Young before their departure.

Dr. and Mrs. Young will leave Wainwright Thursday to motor to California to visit their son. They have been appointed by the Board of Foreign Missions to go to Japan

HEATH

On Friday morning Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones received a telegram from Prince George, B.C., telling them of the passing of Mrs. Harry Moss on April 28th. SMOTHER THAT SNEEZE

Good personal hygiene is a most important measure for the control of droplet infections, the root of many respiratory diseases. If people could avoid the expulsion into the air of organisms from the nose and throat, a major source of infection would be eliminated. Paper handkerchiefs for use when sneezing or coughing or blowing the nose are valuable as they may be burned after use.

"Mummy," asked Mary, a small girl of five, "heaven sends us our daily bread, doesn't it?"

"Yes, dear," replied her mother.

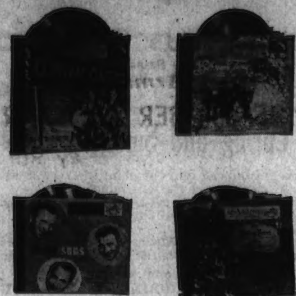

"And Santa Claus brings the presents?"

"Yes, dear."

"And the stork brings the babies?"

"Then, what's the use of having daddy around?"

Former Battle View Resident Dies

The death in Viking last Tuesday, April 27th, of Mrs. Ben Johanson will be of interest in the Battle View district, north of Wainwright. Mrs. Johanson will be remembered by many as the former Mrs. Raymond Stranahan.

Following the death of Mr. Stranahan, Mrs. Johanson was married again to Mr. Ben Johanson of Toland, Alberta, and at the time they both resided in the Battle View district for several years prior to moving to Edmonton and later to Viking. Mrs. Johanson had only been ill a short time previous to her death, and was taken to the Viking Hospital suffering from an acute attack of influenza. Despite all that medical care could do she passed away as stated above on the afternoon of Tuesday, April 27th.

Funeral arrangements were made from Vermilion and interment was made in the Vermilion cemetery on Saturday, May 1st.

Give The Bees A Good Start

W. G. le Maitre, Alberta's Provincial Apiarist, emphasizes the importance of providing stores in the hive for newly hived package bees.

As long as the weather remains warm, both nectar and pollen are available in limited quantities, but during bad weather there is no bee flight and even these supplies are cut off. Then too, a newly installed package has but a very small field force of bees. The incoming food is not enough to supply all the food requirements of the colony.

A colony that becomes short of stores will stop producing young bees. When this happens, the bees will often try to replace the queen. This upsets brood production and results in a weak colony at the time of the honey flow.

The best food for the bees is comb containing pollen and honey saved from the previous year. If the honey has hardened or crystallized, the bees can soften it and use it. Sugar syrup should be fed when combs of honey are not available.

"Here you are, sir," cried the hawk, extending a bouquet. "Buy some nice flowers for your sweet heart."

"Nothing doing," responded the young man. "I haven't got a sweet heart."

"Buy some flowers for your wife then."

"Wrong again," was the answer. "I'm not married."

"Well, then, Guv'nor, buy the bloomin' lot to celebrate your luck."

Seeding Down Legumes

Alfalfa and sweet clover respond to a well prepared seed bed. Profitable yields can generally be secured when legumes are seeded with a nurse crop on summerfallow, corn land, and even second crop land. Seeding on acid soils, and land that has produced two and three crops should be avoided. On the former soil only scattered stands will result, while the latter will tend to be lacking moisture and may contain considerable weeds.

The seed of alfalfa and sweet clover is small and for this reason should not be seeded deeply. Many of the failures to secure a catch with these legumes can be attributed to deep seeding. Broadcasting is preferable to seeding through the grain spout. If seed must be sown with the grain it should only be seeded sufficiently deep to reach moisture, and never more than 1 to 2 inches deep.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Morden, Man., says W. J. Breakey where different methods of seeding have been tested, broadcasting on a firm seed bed, followed by harrowing, has given the most satisfactory results. Seed is sown with a nurse crop, preferably wheat, through a grass seeder attachment on the front of the grain drill. The seed is allowed to fall in front of the discs as the wheat is being seeded. The land is then harrowed, followed by packing to ensure a firm seed bed.

When broadcasting legumes in front of the drill disc the grain drill should be set to cut not over 2 inches deep.

Equally satisfactory results have been obtained by seeding legumes with a special grass-seed seeder and mulcher machine. This machine is drawn by two horses or a small tractor, and seeds a width of 12 feet. The legume or grasses are broadcast in front of three rows of pointed teeth that tend to cover the seed by acting as a harrow.

Where legumes have not been grown before, or for a considerable period, inoculation of the seed is necessary. The inoculum, with instructions, can be secured from the Bacteriology laboratory at the Universities or through the seed houses.

When seeded with a nurse crop alfalfa should be seeded at the rate of 8-10 pounds, and sweet clover 10-12 pounds of seed per acre. If legumes are seeded without a nurse crop, difficulty is experienced in keeping the weeds down, and quite often the first cut may be sacrificed in order to prevent development of weeds.

The rate of seeding the grain nurse crop should be reduced from the standard rate of seeding by at least one peck per acre.

Under no circumstances should the legume be sown the first year. In some years the stand may make a heavy growth, but generally the yield will only be sufficient to hold the snow for winter and early spring covering.

Hints for the Household

RHUBARB—SPRINGS FIRST GIFT
Rhubarb is back again. In some parts of our country the tender pink shoots are just beginning to push through the dead earth. In other sections the stalks are long, crisp and red and the tender leaves are yellow-green in the warm spring sunshine.

Some are fortunate enough to have their own "pie plant", others get an armful from the neighbors and anyone may buy it at the market but everyone enjoys early rhubarb.

Each family has favorite rhubarb recipes and the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have theirs. They recommend several with a difference. They say they are excellent now with the new rhubarb and will also be good enough to remain popular when rhubarb is apt to be made tracked by other summer fruits.

Rhubarb Oatmeal Pudding
4 cups diced raw rhubarb (1 lb.)
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon salt
Wash and dice rhubarb. Cover with boiling water and let stand 5 minutes; drain. Add the 1/2 cup water and boil 2 minutes. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt and stir into rhubarb. Bring to boil.

Topping
1 cup sifted pastry flour OR
1/2 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup rolled oats
1 egg
1/2 cup milk or water
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup melted shortening
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg

Mix and sift flour and baking powder, add rolled oats. Combine egg, milk or water, sugar and melted shortening. Mix lightly into dry ingredients. Add flavoring. Spread this mixture over the boiling rhubarb, cover closely and continue cooking over a low flame for 30 minutes without lifting the cover. Turn upside down onto a serving dish and serve hot. Separate with two forks rather than cut as the mixture is very light and delicate in texture. Yield: Six servings.

Rhubarb Charlotte
6 slices lightly buttered bread 1/2 inch thick
4 cups diced raw rhubarb
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
Use five slices of the bread to line

a greased mould. Fill centre with rhubarb. Add sugar and salt. Place reserved slice of bread on top. Bake 35 minutes in a moderately hot oven 375° F. Turn out to serve. Yield: Six servings.

Rhubarb Sherbet
1 tablespoon gelatine
2 cups cold water
1 cup sugar
1 cup boiling water
2 cups stewed, unsweetened rhubarb
1 egg white

Soak gelatine in 1/4 cup of the cold water. Make a syrup of sugar and boiling water and dissolve gelatine in the hot syrup. Add the remaining cold water and the rhubarb which should be cooked till very soft. Freeze to a mush. Remove from the freezer, beat well and fold in stiffly beaten egg white. Return to freezer and finish freezing. Yield: Eight to ten servings.

Time Out For Laughs

A detachment of colored troops landed at Brest, France, in the World War. They were soon instructed in the art of conflict. One lolling, lumbering buck was questioned: "Suppose you were wandering through 'No Man's Land' and you suddenly came upon a detachment of Germans, what would you do?" "I'd spread the news throughout France that's what I'd do."

Snowball Jackson, in Kentucky, was drafted in the army and assigned to cavalry. Snowball objected. He would serve in any branch of the service but the cavalry. Pressed for a reason for his objection, he drawled: "When I am in the war and we're retreating, I don't want to be dragged to no horse around."

The slightly over-rouged young lady summoned the headwaiter. "That's Clark Gable at the bar, isn't it?" she asked. He assured her that it was. "He's annoying me," she said.

"Annoying you!" The headwaiter raised an eyebrow. "Why he hasn't even looked at you!"

"That," said the young lady, "is what's annoying me."

Be Wary of Bromides!

People rarely die of bromide poisoning, but many are needlessly admitted to a mental hospital because of it, states Dr. Mary V. Jackson in an article "Be Wary of Bromides" in the current March-April issue of the magazine HEALTH, published by the Health League of Canada. Dr. Jackson, on the staff of the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, says bromides, when given for a limited time on advice of a physician following a discussion concerning the patient's complaints and worries, may be an excellent means of increasing a sense of well-being and stabilizing the autonomic nervous system. However, when bromides are used to replace the patient-doctor discussion (often referred to as psychotherapy), the situation resembles that of trying to plug up a leaking pipe instead of calling the plumber.

Moreover, when this drug does not bring improvement within two weeks or even less, further investigation by the physician is essential—not more bromides! Prescriptions for bromides should not be refilled unless on advice of the physician who originally prescribed the bromide.

The writer stresses that salt is necessary in the diet when bromides are being taken, because the bromide ion is excreted from the body only in combination with a chloride ion. As excretion always lags behind intake, only two-thirds of the average dose taken each day can be eliminated. The other third is held back by the body for gradual elimination at another time. Too much concentration of the drug in the blood and tissues is harmful in that over-accumulation causes bromides to reach toxic levels—at which stage they are harmful.

Dr. Jackson states it is impossible to estimate the amount of temporary incapacity from work caused by excessive intake of bromides. Muddled thinking, clumsy movements and thick speech result from such toxicity. Severe delirium can result from indiscriminate use of bromides.

Canadian Garden Service

Give Them Room

Even where there is lots of room to spare the average person is liable to crowd his planting. This is true just as much with rows of vegetables as it is with trees. Seeds and seedlings are usually very tiny, little things that it is hard to realize the extent of the resulting growth.

A rough rule is to allow as much space between the plants, trees, shrubbery or annuals as these things will be high at maturity. Now with a big affair like a maple elm or spruce tree, that means at least 40-50 feet apart, though the full space may not be required for years. Going to the other end of the scale, tiny alumnus would need an inch or so, between plants, carrots about 4 inches, stalked tomatoes 18 inches, gladioli about a foot.

Spacing is Important

This spacing is important. It gives the plants a chance to develop. If crowded together trees, shrubs, flowers and vegetables will be spindly, with the growth weak and a prey to the first storm. Flowers, as well as vegetables, will be poorly developed. With a little elbow room, too, cultivation will be easier.

With vegetables, of course, there will be the space between the rows also to consider. It is a great mistake to have this less than 12 inches for even the tiniest. If less than this one will have great difficulty in cultivating and cultivating regularly is one of the most important jobs in the garden. Carried out weekly until the vegetables are well advanced this will do more than anything else to give up the quick, steady growth which is so essential if the harvest is to be fresh and tender. If we start off with too little distance between the rows in a very few weeks the garden will be crowded. Minimum distances would be 12 inches for things like lettuce and radish, 15 inches for carrots and beets, 18 for beans and peas, 2 feet for tomatoes, corn and potatoes. These are minimum distances and for hand cultivation. Where a garden tractor or horse are used there must be at least a foot between rows, and better a yard.

Save Work in Thinning

One can save a lot of back-bending in thinning if the seed is not planted too thickly in the first place. With larger seeds and roots like beans, peas, corn, gladioli, potatoes etc. it is no trouble to space properly at the beginning. With the tinier seeds, however, such as lettuce, carrots, poppies, alyssum, etc., spacing at planting is impossible. Mixing this fine seed with a little dry sand and then sowing the mixture will give more space between plants.

On the market there are some modestly priced little gadgets to help us sow more evenly and easily when large gardens are involved. These range from little things carried in one hand to two-wheel affairs. They can be adjusted for seeds of various sizes.

PRODUCER

Ernest Morgan, who will produce and direct the CBC's broadcasts of 18 Gilbert and Sullivan operettas to be heard on the Dominion network, beginning Tuesday, May 4, Morgan has directed many broadcasts on CBC domestic networks, including Wednesday night features and programs of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. He recently added to his work the duties of CBC International Service representative in Toronto, and as such is responsible for producing many programs for short-wave broadcasts.

HEED THE DENTIST

Every child should make the acquaintance of the dentist at the age of about three years and visit him twice a year from that time, according to national health experts. In this way dental treatment can be kept to a minimum and each visit made brief and comfortable by filling the cavities when they are very small. Valuable advice can also be obtained to assist in preventing new cavities, crooked teeth and gum diseases.
